The Honorable Jacob K. Javits
United States Senate
Washington 25, D. C.

Dear Senator Javits:

Thank you for your recent letter enclosing a copy of S. 4267 to promote an increasing flow of private capital from the United States to other areas of the world.

As you know, I am deeply concerned with the international activities of the Communist Bloc countries and in this connection I am much interested in international investment, especially that flowing to the uncommitted countries of the world. This interest has led me to report publicly several times on the international investment program of the Sino-Soviet Bloc in these countries.

Soviet Bloc extensions of long-term credits to this group of nations have increased over 200 times in the last four years, while commodity trade, technical aid and other forms of exchanges have also multiplied. Although the absolute level of the Bloc investment program is still small as compared with that of the United States, the returns to the Soviets in good will, prestige and political influence have been enormous. In part these returns are to be explained by the very novelty of the fact that an alternative source of investment funds is available to the recipient countries.

Soviet successes also stem from certain distinctive characteristics of the Soviet program. These include the ability of the Bloc to make long-term financial commitments, the low interest rates charged, the speed and flexibility with which the Bloc can react to opportunities, the alacrity with which the Bloc is able to implement its contracts, and the fact that the Bloc has been willing to take payment in the currency and the goods of the recipient country. Credits and grants are frequently offered in response to the desires of local leaders for prestige projects which are often not economically sound. The Communist program thus may actually impede long-term development, quite apart from its political dangers.

Therefore, an American investment program should be designed in part to counter this growing threat from the Soviet Bloc economic offensive.

I hope these comments will be of some assistance to you and if you have the opportunity I would be glad to sit down with you and discuss this subject in greater detail.

Sincerely,

Signed

Allen W. Dulles
Director

Dear George:

I understand that you are arriving back from Europe today, and I am writing to thank you for all the time you were able to give to meeting with various of our people abroad. I have had full reports from them and should welcome a chance to get your views and suggestions at your convenience.

The interest you have shown in our work has been a real incentive and encouragement to our people abroad, and I am sure you have some ideas which will be helpful to us all. I shall be glad to call at your office any time at your convenience.

Sincerely,

Signed

Dear George:

I enclose the various papers which you requested this morning, and should be glad to supplement them as you may desire.

I have added to the list, information with regard to 24 appearances made by CIA before congressional committees during the last year of the Congress. I appeared personally at most of these sessions and in all important cases the appearances were off the record. I may add that the security observed during these executive sessions was of the highest order.
